

Portfolio Welcome Page

My name is David Friedland. I am employed at the U.S. Department of Defense. I have completed a master's degree in Business Administration with a concentration in Artificial Intelligence Management. My bachelor's degree is in Public Relations. I have taken courses in Instructional Design, Cyber-Security, Web Development, JavaScript, and various computer applications. I have acquired an exceptional amount of diverse knowledge both through my work and academic experiences. Through coursework, extracurricular activities, and workplace projects, I have participated in numerous projects that require a diverse skill set. My ambition for challenging tasks has led me to pursue my current goal of further education in the field of Instructional Design.

This portfolio was created to incorporate the assignments I completed in the course entitled Instructional Design and Technology into an organized online portfolio. I can expand this portfolio in the future to include both future academic and employment accomplishments.
